Welcome to "The Twilight Zone," otherwise known as the U.S. Senate, where a major political debate over the future of the F-22 jet fighter is being played out in conjunction with a spat over whether to add a completely unrelated hate-crimes provision into the overall defense spending bill.

It's called politics in the 21st century, and it's unavoidable. Many of its opponents claim that the crimes are already adequately punished.

Perhaps no one, other than his onetime journalism is telling the public what it needs to know, more embodies the American presence on the moon in 1969. Each time

And Americans love him for it. He was the standard for TV anchors, not just here but overseas.
