

more than a classroom...so much more.

Studies show that students who take part in service activities have a more positive college experience thanks to a better understanding of course material, more frequent interaction with faculty and stronger connections to the community.

What is Service-Learning?

“... a teaching and learning approach that integrates community service with academic study to enrich learning, teach civic responsibility, and strengthen communities.

– National Commission

What is Community-Based Learning?

Community-based learning is an approach to learning and teaching that encourages students to apply the knowledge and analytic tools gained in the classroom to the pressing issues affecting local communities. Students engage in meaningful community service that is connected to specific course objectives. Some courses require service-learning projects, other require community-based research projects.

What is Community-Based Research?

“Community-Based Research (CBR) is a partnership of students, faculty and community members who collaboratively engage in research with the purpose of solving a pressing community problem or effecting social change.”

-Strand, et al, 2003
