

WEBER STATE UNIVERSITY

PRESENTS
THE HISTORY LECTURE SERIES
FALL 2008
CRITCHLOW LECTURE

PROFESSOR DONALD E. WORSTER

Joyce and Elizabeth Hall Professor of U.S. History, University of Kansas

“The True Wealth of Nations: Theodore Roosevelt and the American Conservation Ethic”

This election year, like so many others, brings up the name of Theodore Roosevelt as a model of presidential leadership on environmental matters. But it's not always clear today what Roosevelt stood for or accomplished and how he might serve as a model. His legacy is great and profound, but also more complicated and disturbing than candidates or voters may realize. That legacy now raises many questions. We need to understand this president's ideas on conservation better and ask whether they are still relevant today.

Wednesday, October 22, 2008
7:00-9:00 pm
WSU Stewart Library 2nd floor,
Hetzel-Hoellein Room

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC