		The “Thailand: International Community Engaged Learning Project” is a tw o-phased w orkshop that involves Weber State University students, faculty and staff collaborating w ith a non-profit aid organization (Somporn) located in Thailand to construct a kitchen/dining hall for an orphanage, plus provide the attendant children w ith educational opportunities. Phase I w ill include a spring 2015 semester on-campus w orkshop (GEOG 2920/DET2929) w here WSU students w ill be learning about the geography, culture, and climate of Thailand. The course w ill also include construction design techniques for tropical climates, green building methods, project management, and fundraising techniques. WSU students w ill be tasked w ith designing the educational component of the project by designing a variety of classes for the Thai children. Phase II w ill consist of WSU students, faculty and staff traveling to northern Thailand during May 2015 to construct the kitchen/dining hall for the orphanage plus implementing the educational component for the children, instructing them in English, arts, sports, life skills, health and hygiene. During both phases of the project, WSU students w ill be forging team-building skills, learn how to analyze a problem, set objectives, and determine how to accomplish those objectives and then follow through w ith the finalization of the endeavor. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity.
