

MEDUC 6000 APA References Question and Answer Sheet

Answer each question and give the corresponding APA Manual page from Chapter 7, beginning on page 193. We will review your answers as a class and you will have the opportunity to write and correct references in groups. You will need to know where to find information to help your group! Then you will be given the APA Reference assignment to write a “controlled” reference page.

	APA Manual page(s)
What sources are included in the Reference page?
How are sources organized in the Reference list?
What information about the place of publication needs to be given? What exceptions are there to this?
Where are the State abbreviations found?
Are there any special rules for publishers?
What page does the section on general reference forms start? (review these forms)
Beginning on page 198, the manual goes through each major element of a reference and gives some helpful hints for dealing with odd situations. Read through these, they answer many of your questions.
Following this there is also a section which gives examples of more specific kinds of references, what section is it and where does this begin?
Examples can be found by categories- listed alphabetically. What category would you look under for examples of books?
for examples of online(electronic) articles?
for examples of variations in authors names?
for periodicals (journals)?

for technical and research reports?

What is the DOI? How do you include this in a reference?

What example number(s) would you use to write the reference for:
a chapter in an edited book?

an article found on the internet which is an electronic copy from a printed journal?

a Master's project/thesis from a university?

a journal article?

an author who has a junior (jr) in their name?

a secondary source? What is a secondary source?

Use the reference examples to answer the following questions.
How are the references indented?

What type of information is italicized for:

periodicals?

books?

papers presented at meetings?

document from an organizations website?

Can you come up with a way to generalize how to know what information would be italicized in a reference?

Are you expected to memorize all this information?
