What is Project LIFE?

Project LIFE (Literacy Instruction to Further Education) is an individualized literacy tutoring program sponsored by Weber State University’s Center for Poverty & Inequality. The goal of this program is to provide tutoring to help individuals complete their GED, apply for college or prepare for additional schooling in a specific trade area in order to improve their life and career.

Why be a Project LIFE Tutor?

Tutors will receive a Chromebook to use for an entire semester. They will also receive training in literacy instruction as well as in working with those who are in poverty and/or have drug addictions. This is an excellent opportunity to gain urban teaching experience, practice what you are learning in the classroom, provide a needed service, as well as earn a scholarship for $1,000!
