Justification	The major purpose of this course is to expose students to understanding psychological disorders. Students will need to demonstrate understanding of the symptoms, etiological factors, and treatments of psychological disorders.	A major focus of abnormal psychology is the application of symptoms, etiological factors, and treatment of psychological disorders. Textbooks, lecture presentations, classroom discussions, exams, and assignments reflect the importance of application.	Students are taught to value ambiguity and the complexity of psychological disorders and their treatment. Students are taught to see psychological disorders from many perspectives. Furthermore, students are taught the ethical limits of their ability to apply course materials to specific situations which require licensure.	Although there are opportunities to write, the size and scope of the course makes extensive writing assignments impossible to assign. Nonetheless short essays, and some written homework assignments account for approximately 15% of the students' final grade in the course.

Note: The values in the cells reflect the relative emphasis in the course of each learning outcome from a scale of 1 (low) to 4 (high). The value indexes the amount of lecture material devoted to each goal, the number of assessments dedicated to each goal, and the weighting or importance of assessments of each outcome for the final grade in the course..
