Psychology 2000

Welcome to interpersonal Relationships. This is an interesting area of Psychology that deals with our interactions with other people.

Text etc: The name of the text and the dates of the reading assignments are given on the accompanying schedule sheet. Do read the text carefully and completely.

Tests and Quizzes: Each of the three major tests will consist of about 50 multiple choice questions on the block of the material. Study the book and go over your class notes. Bring a number two pencil for the tests. The short quizzes will generally be ten true/false questions, taken from in-class activities and lecture. If for some reason you will miss a test or quiz, please talk to me in advance, if possible, to arrange for a makeup.

Other Assignments: Two verbal reports, ten “Up Close” papers, and nine in-class case studies are assigned, as described in the class.

Grades: Your grade is based on the total number of points from tests, quizzes, verbal reports, “Up Close” papers, and in-class case studies.

Goal: The primary goal of the class is to learn about and experience basic elements of human behavior that relate to interpersonal relationships.

In Class: Do be to class. Do listen and take notes. If for some reason you miss, get the notes, etc., from someone in the class. Do participate in the in-class activities. Please do not “chit-chat” with others during class time. Please turn off all electronic devices and put them away. If you have relevant questions and comments, please share them with the entire class. No cheating, of course. If you have special needs or problems, please discuss them with me.
