That's why the measures adopted in the WFFL and Pop Warner are a good sign. These child athletes who are being protected with the new rules are the remaining respect for long-term health and bringing that same pledge to one day to the elite aspects of the game.

Vote-by-mail method costs more, is less secure

It was reported by local newspapers in June 2011, that West Virginia lost over $25,000 as complaints of VBM being worse than double on their first vote-by-mail than what the city had anticipated. Councilman Ron Burdette, in an article in the Seattle Times, noted that $25,000 was the amount that was paid to officials of the Office of the Attending Physician. The amount is $3,400 above the request made by the city in 2012.
