MENG Faculty Development Award

This award is designed to encourage and acknowledge faculty members who have made significant contributions to the MENG program, in the areas of teaching, research/scholarship, creative endeavors or service.

The recipient(s) will receive a one-course release from teaching for one semester.

Guidelines:

1. Faculty members who have taught in the MENG program within a two-year period prior to or who will teach within a two-year period subsequent to the award are eligible to apply.
2. The faculty member selected may not teach overload in the undergraduate program during the term of the award.
3. The proposed work should benefit the MENG Program as well as the individual faculty member.
4. The recipient will provide a 5-minute talk describing the project and its benefit to the MENG Program to the department at the beginning of the semester following the award.

Application Process:

1. Prepare a 500-word description of the project. Specifically describe the proposed project in terms of:
  - a. How it will benefit the MENG Program and its course offerings;
  - b. How it will benefit students in the program;
  - c. How it will benefit the faculty member.
2. By November 10, 2014 send completed proposal to Genevieve Bates at MasterofEnglish@weber.edu

Selection Process:

1. The recipient of the MENG Faculty Development Award will be selected by a 5-person committee. The committee will consist of the Chair of the English Department, 3 senior faculty chosen by the MENG Program Director and who are external to the Department of English, and the MENG Program Director, who will chair the committee.
2. With the exception of the award for Spring 2015, awards will be made in fall semester prior to department undergraduate course scheduling deadlines in October.
