Physical Education Program Review
Dean's Response

Appreciation is given for all of the work that has gone into this program review. Thanks to the Physical Education faculty for putting the Self-Study document together, the review team for reviewing the printed materials, for taking the time to meet with faculty, staff and students on campus, and for summarizing their findings for the program faculty. The feedback given by the review team members will be very helpful as the Physical Education faculty continue their ongoing efforts towards program renewal and enhancement.

The review team noted the strong improvements since the 2014 review and specifically stated they “found a robust, well-designed program with clearly defined objectives, assessments, and program improvements”. The program has worked diligently to develop a program that best prepares WSU students to become professional physical educators.

As mentioned in the program director's response the challenges along with all other recommendations for improvement by the review team, are either under consideration with action plans already in place, or appropriate responses are being considered and will be acted upon by the program faculty over the course of the next two years.

The Jerry and Vickie Moyes College of Education is strongly committed to the ongoing support of the Department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, and the Physical Education Program, faculty, staff, and students.

Again, thanks to all who have contributed to this program evaluation and congratulations to the faculty, staff, and chair of the Department of Health Promotion Human Performance (Health, Physical Education, and Recreation as of July 2019) for all the great work they do, and to Chad Smith, James Zagrodnik, Ryan Zimmerman and Mandy Kirkham-King for their outstanding dedication to the Physical Education Program and their students.
