

Transition Discussion Tool TDT for Secondary Students with High Incidence Disabilities

The Transition Discussion Tool (TDT) supports goal and career planning, assessment, self-determination, IEP development, and transition success across multiple service tiers in varied educational or employment settings.

Self-determination ($p < .03$) and engagement ($p < .05$) significantly increased ($n=199$) in a one year randomized control trial.

“This is a strong tool to open up conversations that I didn't even realize needed to be had! It really helps clear a pathway to a realistic future rather than a ‘one day’.... I could see myself using this tool in applied skills class, as well as through mentoring we do at my school... I like how it is ongoing rather than a one-time survey. I can see this project being of great value to teachers, students, parents, and admins once it's implemented! I'm excited to see where this goes next!”
